All Students Requesting Tuition Waiver Must First Apply for Financial Assistance. FASFSFA Completed? Yes No

Graduate tuition waivers which exceed $5,250 per calendar year are subject to federal income tax withholding. Taxable fringe benefits are defined in IRS Publication 15B and the Internal Revenue Code §127. Therefore, your graduate tuition waivers in excess of $5,250 will be added as taxable compensation for your last December paycheck, and federal income tax withholding will be deducted according to your withholding election on your latest Form W-4. As a result, this amount will be included in the taxable income reported on your Form W-2.

I verify that all information on this application for waiver of tuition is accurate and correct.
